To Welcome

Supreme Officers

The local members of the Sons of England Benefit society are looking forward with great interest to the approaching visit of the Supreme Officers of the society, and the reception committee are busy preparing a program that will make their stay in the city as interesting as possible.

This is the first visit of these officers to the western portion of the Dominion, and they are already getting their eyes open to the strength of the Society in the west. This week is being spent in the province of Saskatchewan, next week will be devoted to the northern portion of our own province, arriving in the city of Calgary on the 23rd inst. The main object of this western tour is the institution of the first provincial grand lodge, which will take place in Calgary on the evening of the 30th June. Grand lodge sessions will be mixed with entertainment on the 1st and 2nd of July, and Lethbridge will be well represented. July 3rd is booked for Medicine Hat, and the local lodge will meet the distinguished visitors on their arrival at Lethbridge at 10:10 on the 4th inst.

The program as drawn out at present includes a special session of lodge "Pride of Alberta," at 7:30 p.m. in formal reception at 9:15, and this will be followed by a banquet in the S. O. E. hall at 9:45. The visitors will be given a civic welcome by the mayor at this and several of the leading men of the city will be present. Saturday will be devoted to automobile trips showing the visitors the resources of the city and surrounding district, and it is expected the Board of Trade will take some part in this feature. In the evening the directors of the S. O. E. Hall Co. will entertain at dinner. The visitors will remain in the city over Sunday, and leave for Macleod on the morning of the 7th, where an elaborate program is already prepared.

The S. O. E. building will be suitably decorated and illuminated for the occasion, and the committee are confident that the officers, visit to Lethbridge will be one of the most interesting of the whole tour—Lethbridge Herald.

SHAKE OFF YOUR RHEUMATISM

Now is the time to get rid of your rheumatism. Try a twenty five cent bottle of Chamberlain's Liniment and see how quickly your rheumatic pains disappear. Sold by all dealers.

Basket Social a Success

There was a good attendance at the basket social at the opera house on Wednesday night. The best price $5.75, was for a basket belonging to Mrs. P. M. Pinkney, while the average paid for about thirty baskets was $3.00 each. Lemons ran high and were eagerly sought after by the local grocers and bank clerks. $3.50 was paid for 3 lemons in one case and $3.75 for one lemon in another case. Some commercial travellers present considered Blairmore a veritable Klondike for the fruit trade.

J. M. Carter, the auctioneer performed his mission in an able manner and is wholly responsible for the advance in the price of lemons. In sporting the football game that merited the hearty support of everyone, and the clever work of the artist who manufactured one beautiful basket made bidding run high on that particular article. The purchaser was handed a lemon colly.

After the sale the delectables were unheeded and assisted in receiving those present whose appetites were parched through the representations made by the auctioneer regarding the unknown contents.

Dancing was resumed until 4 a.m., over thirty couples participating. The Coleman orchestra furnished good music.

A goodly sum was realized on behalf of the Blairmore Football Club.

Blairmore Defeats Fernie

Blairmore's league football "stars" put it all over the Fernie team on Saturday afternoon last and won to the tune of five to one. From the start the Fernie boys seemed to lack in strength, while the Blairmore lineup was simply unentenable.

At half time the score stood 2-0 in the locals' favor, which half was played while the visitors had the wind and sun in their favor.

The change of sides was thought to have a favorable effect upon the Fernie showing, but Blairmore lacked nothing and despite a shortage in their ranks of one man, they scored another three goals before the finish.

Briefs

Fire at that section of Sydney N.S. known as Whitney Pier, did damage last week to the extent of $150,000.

The Northwest Mining News has been succeeded on the advent of its ninth year by the Northwest Mining and Metallurgy. The new periodical is of unique make-up and will prove of inestimable value to all interested in the problems of mining and engineering.

The trial of Arthur Pelkey for manslaughter in connection with the death of Luther McCarty on May 24th, opened at Calgary yesterday before Chief Justice Harvey, with a jury. The trial of Tommy Burns will not take place until the fall.

J. E. Gillis, of Campbell & Gillis, Macleod, came to town on Wednesday. Mr. Gillis has opened offices in the Budd block.

Judgment in Favor of Morrall

The case of A. R. Morrall against the Rocky Mountain Cement Co., for wages claimed on account of wrongful dismissal from the company, came up for hearing before Justice Gresham on Wednesday evening.

Morrall was dismissed by the local superintendent on May 21st on account of not putting in appearance for work on time that morning. Morrall proved that he had been slightly indisposed on the morning of the 21st on account of injuries received the night previous, and claimed to be entitled to receive one month's notice in the event of discharge.

L. H. Putnam appeared for the company, while H. C. Moore pleaded for the complainant. Judgment was delivered in favor of Morrall for three weeks' wages viz. $60.25, with costs amounting to $3.60.

About $30 was netted from the basket social and dance held in the Blairmore opera house on Wednesday night, under the auspices of the football club.

A well-known pool artist proved himself to be a poor judge of confectionery value on Wednesday night when he paid the small sum of $2.25 for an "all-day sucker."

The ladies of the Altar Society of the Catholic Church desire through this medium to thank all those who assisted towards making their lawn social a success, and particularly to Manager Kip of the Alberta hotel who very kindly contributed towards treating the children present to ice cream and refreshments.

Owing to the rain showers quite a number were prevented from attending the social, but as it was a sum in the neighborhood of $25 was cleared from the day's proceedings, besides some extra amounts promised and yet to be collected.

Saving Our Forests

"Constant progress in forest conservation" is the keynote of the fourteenth annual report of the Canadian Forestry Association which has just been issued from the office of the Secretary, Mr. James Lawler, Canadian Building, Ottawa. The report, which contains all the addresses made by the prominent forestry experts, legislators and officials at the convention held in Victoria, B.C., is replete with the latest views of the most advanced minds in this line of national public activity. The great strides forward of the Federal and Provincial Governments, two of whom passed far-reaching legislation within the year, unusual progress of the science of forest protection among lumbermen, and the numerous changes in the Canadian Forestry Association itself, all indicate most clearly that the country is rapidly taking up the issue and making for more adequate protection of the great forest heritage. Copies of the Canadian Forestry Association report are to be had free from Mr. Lawler, on application.

A dance will be given at the Rocky Mountain Senatorium tonight.

Blairmore Marathoners

The Blairmore marathon club held their second run on Monday afternoon, a number of new lights entering the field. An effort was made to break the world's record for a 200 yard dash and a tramp, a miner, a bookkeeper, a pool artist, a druggist and a Socialist were set-a-going by Robert Livingstone. At the finish the druggist found his second to be 157 yards behind and the pool artist a third. The druggist has all claim to the new record of the world, having covered the 200 yards in 57.5 seconds. The Socialist was so filled up with hot air that he took the leather medal for coming in last, his time being 200 seconds exactly. Mr. Real Estate Man acted as official timekeeper. His watch stopped three times during the time the druggist was covering the 200 yard line. A number of new names are listed for the next run, which will likely be about Monday next. If they fail to beat the druggist's record, he will be immediately sent to Syracuse or Burma to compete for the championship belt.

The Blairmore league team will play football at Hillcrest tomorrow (Saturday) evening.

The heaviest rain and hail storm of the year visited this section yesterday. From the prairie come reports of considerable damage done by wind and hail. At Lethbridge buildings were upturned, windows broken and general destruction wrought.

The Business Man and His Stationery

The merchant encourages you always to buy a good article in preference to that which may be cheapest. He is right, without doubt, but how often he fails to learn this lesson himself—especially in the stationery in daily use—some envelopes which reach us through the mail are a disgrace to the sender.

We wonder if the merchant always understands that his business is measured oftentimes by the class of stationery he sends out—yes, even the quality of paper in the bills he renders—we venture to say that there is nothing which points out a business man's carefulness and general make-up more plainly than the quality and style of the stationery he uses. It advertises his standard—it announces clearly to the public what class of goods they may expect at his store.

If the merchant sends out a wishy-washy rag of a letterhead, envelope, invoice or statement, the public may reasonably expect the same quality and the prices in the merchant's stock of goods.

Just think over the business. You are acquainted with and notice the quality of their stationery.

And Mr. Business man, think this over too and see that you do not suffer for proper attention to this sometimes neglected but very necessary detail.—Creston Review.

The editor sat in his hard bottom chair trying to think of a thought, and he thought of nothing but his hair, but not a new topic they brought. He'd written on temperance, on tariff and trade, and the prospects of raising a crop, and then about ice cream and weak lungs, until his readers had warned him to stop. And, weary of thinking, sleep came to his eyes, as he pilowed his head on his desk, when the thoughts which awake had refused to arise, came in drops that were a rage and grotesque. And as the lines stirly flut, he selects the bright one of the tribe, and this is the gem, while dreaming he wrote: "Now is the time to subscribe."

Boyhood's Happy Days

I'd like to be a boy again, without a woe or care, with freckles scattered on my face, and bayonet in my hair. I'd like to rise at four o'clock and do a hundred chores, and saw the wood and feed the hogs and lock the stable doors; and herd the hens and watch the bees and take the milk to drink, and teach the turkeys how to swim so that they wouldn't sink; and milk about a hundred cows, and bring the wood to burn, and stand out in the sun all day and churn and churn and churn; and wear my brother's cast-off clothes and walk four miles to school, and get a licking every day for breaking some old rule, and then get home again at night, and do the chores some more, and milk the cows and feed the hogs and carry mules galore; and then crawl wearily up stairs to seek my little bed, and hear dad say: "That worthless boy! He isn't worth his bread!" I'd like to be a boy again—a boy has so much fun. His life is just a round of mirth from rise to set of sun. I guess there's nothing pleasanter than closing stable doors and herding hens and chasing bees and doing evening chores.—Oak Park (Ill.) Star.

The Calgary News-Telegram's "Prosperity Edition," issued on Saturday last, was a mammoth affair of 150 pages and was in every respect creditable to the enterprise of the publishers. The edition liberally patronized by the business men of Calgary, and gave no evidence of the reported financial stringency. The News-Telegram is a great newspaper.

MARRIED MEN'S GAMES

The upper picture shows Mayor Lyon at the bat in the big game of the "married" versus "single" played last week.
No. 2 is Brisco ready to elude Belder Hisecks.
No. 4 is Hisecks in the role of star fielder.
No. 5 is Ollie Olson imagining himself to be a married man. No. 6 shows another would-be aspirant for marriage honors.
Benson and Olson were both recipients of leather medals at the hands of the young ladies of Blairmore, who claim that both chaps should marry the "game."

DIFFERENT.

How Prospective Widow Accounts For

Sudden Change

A N Irishman over the age of four score and ten who by strict economy had accumulated a moderate fortune and was the proprietor in the parish priest and the family lawyer to make his last will and testament. The wife, a rather covetous old lady, was also the proprietor of the household and the family lawyer to make his last will and testament. It became necessary to inquire about the debts owing to the estate.

Among those were several of importance of which the old lady had been in ignorance, but was, nevertheless, pleased to find that so much ready money would be forthcoming after the funeral.

"Now, then," said the lawyer, "state exactly the amount owed you by your friends."

"Timothy Brown," replied the old man, "owes me $250. John Casey owes me $185, and—"

"Stop, good!" ejaculated the prospective widow. "Fidelity to the last!"

"Take Brown owes me $200," resumed the old man.

"Fidelity to the last!" put in the prospective widow.

"To Michael Liffey I owe $1,000."

"Ah," exclaimed the old woman, "that's my nephew—Irish wit and humor."

He Was Justly Suspicious.

A big news meeting was being held in Blenheim.

The well-groomed and slick-looking individual who was trying to separate the town from its money—rose to make a few remarks.

"Fellow citizens," he opened up "Stapleton."

"A little minute, mister," said a small, sturdy, whiskered man.

A look of annoyance crossed the speaker's face.

"What can I do for you?" he asked.

"I have seen a great edition of Webster's Dictionary, and I want to look up that word 'stapleton.' I don't intend to sit here and let some old-timer strangle all over me."

"You are a little suspicious, I see," said the speaker. "Now, that word to which you refer means—"

"Never mind what it means," he joined the little man. "I'm looking it up. I let a smooth talker sell me a new bicycle one time. He said it was the best in the neighborhood, and when I paid the freight on it from Chicago I found I had purchased a wheeler row—dog!"

Bobby Was Observant.

The teacher was hearing the youthful class in mathematics.

"Now," she said, "in order to subtract, things have to be in the same denomination. For instance, we couldn't take three pounds from ten cents. Do you understand?"

"There was present from the majority of the class, one little boy in the rear missed a mind hand."

"Well, Bobby, what is it?" asked the teacher.

"Please teacher," said Bobby, "couldn't you take three quarts of milk from two cows?"—New York Post.

THE PROFFER OF THE POET.

IN my study, listless, weary, as I pondered, dull and dreary.

Over piles of useless verse I had penned some years before.

As I sat there, musing, thinking I must take to "bookings."

Suddenly I heard a knocking, knocking at my study door.

"It's some creditor," I muttered, knocking at my study door.

Only this, and nothing more.

"Come," said I in trepidation and with beads of perspiration.

Literally cowering, cowering out of every

And my tailor (brother) actually took

Showing somewhat of vexation, just inside my study door.

With his bill, now six months owing, I waited with my study door.

My word of greeting was "I'm sorry."

"I cried, 'Oh, thread and needle, can't I perambulate wheeled

From darning me at present as you've often done before?

I've the silliness of all purses, so from your abundant mercies

Take your money out in verse, by instalments, I implore.

Won't you trust me any longer? Tell me truly, I implore."

Quoth that tailor, "New York Sun."

The Senator Who Wanted Him.

Senator Williams sees with his big eyes than many men do with two; nevertheless, those who see him cannot help noticing his misfortune. Some time ago he clung his hands for a page from the cloakroom, and a new one responded.

"Tell Senator Clay," he said, "that I want to see him in the cloakroom."

The page ran on the errand, stopping to ask the head usher where Senator Clay sat. Then he asked, "Who is it that has only one eye?"

The Usual, Thinking It a Question in Mythology, replied, "Why, Cyclops, of course."

The page delivered his message in this astounding way: "Senator Cyclops wants to see you in the cloakroom," New York American.

A Dodger.

Senator Luke Lee of Tennessee was describing a tariff argument wherein he had been the victor.

"My opponent," he said, "dogged the argument with silly quips. He was like the chap on the stage who answered by moral trimmings any proposition put to him. One of the audience asked this question:

"How far off can you hear thunder?"

"I can't tell you," was the reply.

"Why not, sir?"

"Because I'm a lightning calculator."—Los Angeles Times.

Couldn't Tell.

The vicar has just called me a broken-down old man, he bawled. What is it to do?"

"Now the lawyer had once received a severe rebuff from the farmer, and had waited for years for a chance to repay it. Here was his opportunity, and he seized it with both hands.

"Don't come to me about that," he said, coolly. "I can't patch you up. I'm no veterinary surgeon."

Couldn't do it

Look here, begin the man, as he entered a butcher's shop and asked for two black-and-blue eyes, you have fresh beef for sale? I have, replied the butcher.

And fresh beef is good for black eyes?

Oh, yes.

Very well. I have the eyes and you have the beef. Do you think you can sell me a pound or so without asking me how I got decorated?

I will do my best.

The butcher then cut off and weighed the meat, and received the money for it without another glance at the customer. That was not the end, however. A sudden wave of curiosity swept over him, and he laid the money down and said: Here, I'll make you a present of the meat. Now, tell me about the fight.

As Good as New

George, I made a lovely discovery this morning.

Did you? And what was it? Inquired his husband.

You remember that also, before last account book you gave me for a Christmas present the year before last—the one in which I was to keep record of every penny I spent?

Yes.

Well, I found it this morning, and it was as good as new.

As well? I never wrote a single thing in it, except my name!

Walter, grumbled a customer. I should like to know the meaning of this. Yesterday I was served with a portion of pudding twice the size of the first.

Indeed, sir, rejoined the waiter. Where did you sit? By the window. Oh, that accounts for it. We always give the people by the window large portions. It's a good advertisement.

Every dose of this medicine makes new, rich blood which drives out impurities, gives energy and vitality, and a feeling of new health and energy to weak, tired, ailing men, women and children. It is the only medicine that gives this medicine a trial and see how quickly it will restore the appetite, and give you a new, healthy, glowing blood.

You can get the pills from any medicine dealer at 50 cents a box or six boxes for $2.50 from Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., Brockville, Ont.

It Paid Better

While waiting through the West, a man called a valuable dog, and immediately proceeded to the office of the Hunter's Review in the town where he was stopping. Entering abruptly, he said to the editor: I've lost a dog. I'd like to have you insert this ad. for me.

Seventy-five dollars reward for the return of a French bulldog answering to the name of Darwin. Last seen on Turn's Road.

We're just going to press, said the editor, but we'll manage to hold the edition for you.

After returning to the hotel, the man was surprised to find his dog waiting for him. He went to the dog and said: "I thought you were lost." The dog replied: "I was, but I found my way back."

Where is everybody? he asked. Come to hurt the dawg, replied the lad, without removing his gaze from the distant fields.

Ask for Minard's and take no other.

She Wanted Comfort

An old country woman, compelled to sit in a suffocating smoking compartment in a crowded excursion train, gazed open-mouthed through the window at a lady on the platform who was giving the porter exacting instructions regarding the storage of her bicycle.

See that you and the best place in the van, porter, and six or seven people, and don't let anyone play with the bell, and close the windows so that the air can't get in, and cover up the handle bars and make sure that the train doesn't shake it as it goes over the road.

The porter promised staidly obedient, pocketed his tip and turned to go.

One moment, young fellow, cried the old woman, leaning out of the window and catching her arm, I want to get out of here. It ain't half cozy enough. Here's tuppence; now show me the way to the bicycle van.

Fair Warning

Where Jake Drew the Line

Jake Tannenbaum was a theatre in Motion when the Race question is very acute. Furthermore, he exercises great care in his scrutiny of the bills and contracts which he presents in his house. One morning he received from a celebrated Shakespearean actor a contract at plays to be put on during a run of seven days.

I see here, Romeo and Juliet, said Jake, running his finger down the list, and I will stand for that. But I shirk when I think of that fellow playing Romeo. And here's Hamlet. No man living can play Hamlet as he should be played. And here is Othello!

At this point Mr. Tannenbaum leaped out of his chair and hung on the ambient atmosphere, a long—dangling gown.

It is too much! he cried in anguish. I am no fanatic, I am not a crazy man on the Race question. But I'm a son of a gun if I'm going to have in my theatre any black man handing out a lot of mushy talk to a white woman.

A Running Account

Briefly, the solicitor, was angry. It was easy to see from the vicious way he was filling in a bill of costs. Said the tailor, he actually had the impudence to ask my bill in twice, and now his little son had come to demand the money.

I am too busy to attend to such a small matter now, he said. Tell your father I'm not going to run away. A way went the fourth with the message, but very soon he returned.

Father's eye must have the money, please, he slipped in childlike, innocence.

Tut, tut! Didn't you tell him I was not going to run away?

Yes, sir. Please, sir. I told him that all right but he told me to tell you, sir, that he was!

As Man to Man

Dick, I never ought my little boy would tell his mother a falsehood, claimed the mother in the well-known more-in-sorrow-than-in-anger kind of voice.

"Wasn't really a story, muttered Dick, with downcast countenance. I didn't run in the road, but only in the gutter."

That makes it worse. Half a story is worse than a whole one, as I've told you often. And now I feel it to be my duty to punish you severely.

This duty, it said, the mother performed most conscientiously. When father returned home, therefore, in the evening, he found his wife looking very red-eyed and disconsolate.

Well, my poor little boy, he asked, "what's the matter?"

Nuffing, snuffed Dick!

But something must be wrong, son-of-a-gun! You cannot cure these troubles by the use of purgative medicines—you need a tonic, and a tonic only, and among all medicines there is none can equal Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for their tonic, life-giving, nerve-restoring powers.

Seeing is Believing

The weather was wet. Business had been bad. Hence Farmer Giles, never amiable, was even more fractious than usual.

He came down from the cart on his return home from the market, he noticed a lantern-light moving about in the garden, and he proceeded at once to make investigations.

By his surprise, he discovered a yoked lantern in hand, talking to his niece.

What's your business here? demanded Farmer Giles peremptorily.

I came a courtin' master.

Came a what?

A courtin', I be a courtin' Mary.

It's a lie. You're come here thieving, but you know I have. No more courtin' with a lantern. At any rate, I never did.

No, sir, replied the yokel quietly. I shouldn't 'ink no, judgin' by the misus!

Henry Augustus was learning to dress himself. He was not so big as the name sounds.

Mother, who was sitting there, son, you have your shoes on the wrong feet!

Well, sir, exclaimed Henry Augustus, they're the only feet I have to put 'em on!

Holloway's Corn Cure takes the corn out of the toes. Try it and prove it.

A Pleasant Prospect

I want you to put some wallpaper I have bought, said the country clergyman, meeting the local mail-carrier. When can you do it?

Boxing Bout is Cut Short

The scheduled twelve-round boxing bout on Saturday night between Dick Marshall and Frank Peters was made a fizzle through the unsportsmanlike tactics of the latter who on several occasions attempted to foul his opponent.

Two good preliminaries between local aspirants were put on, the second being the most interesting when Battling Nelson endeavored to defeat Cyclone Manley. Both the preliminaries were declared draws.

In the first round Peters started in regular clean-up style, hitting his opponent when he could, and hitting the referee when he couldn't locate Marshall. Marshall played the defensive right through the first round while Peters displayed poor ability at preservation of wind.

The second was more interesting and from start to finish Marshall proved the wrong aggressor, and soon showed Peters that he had used poor judgment in the display of his generalship at the start and that the young Italian was a tough and vicious as though nothing had happened. Marshall retired several boiling uppers at the jaw as well as several forceful jabs at the face which set the big six-footer whirling apparently dazed.

Near the finish of the round Peters in a state of dizziness attempted to throw his opponent through a door way out of the ring. This action called forth general reprobation from the audience. On receiving his feet Peters was brought to a terrific back-hand left which sent him to the ropes just as the time was called.

The third round started with Peters apparently all in, while Marshall looked and felt at his best. Shortly after the commencement of this round a foul was declared when Marshall was tripped to the floor and hit while down. At this stage the timely appearance of Constable Hancock of the R. N. W. M. P. put a stop to the game.

Marshall was given the decision. Marshall was by far the better man in both science and principle. Marshall is generally regarded as a clean sport and it is to be regretted that a would be fine exhibition of the science of boxing should be given a black eye through the poor judgment and lack of principle of a chap whose place should be anywhere but in the ring.

We understand that Peters is desirous of again trying conclusions. If such a bout materializes, Peters will be given to understand that a boxing exhibition is not to be a rough-and-tumble fight.

TAKING PLENTY OF TIME IN EAT—There is a saying that "rapid eating is slow suicide." If you have formed the habit of eating too rapidly you are most likely suffering from indigestion or constipation, which will result eventually in serious illness unless corrected. Digestion begins in the mouth. Food should be thoroughly masticated and insalivated. Then when you have a fullness of the stomach or feel dull and stupid after eating, take one of Chamberlain's Tablets. Many severe cases of stomach trouble and constipation have been cured by the use of these tablets. They are easy to take and most agreeable in effect. Sold by all dealers.

A fifteen-round boxing contest between Eugene Piola, an Italian, and J. Alexander, colored, will take place at Fernie on Dominion day. Piola and Alexander have met before in preliminary bouts, and are spoken of as good all-round boxers. Piola has gained the decision over Alexander on two former occasions, but is the lightest man of the two.

A number of members of the Ladies Alpine Club ascended the Hog's Back on Sunday afternoon. They proved too feet-fatigued for their male friends who were compelled to take cold feet and abandon the climb before reaching the half-way post. We understand that the ladies are about to challenge the gentlemen to an ascent of the Turtle.
